Alberto Fonseca

Alberto Fonseca Diaz, a principal with Oliver Wight Americas, assists companies with large Spanish-speaking populations with their implementation of process improvement initiatives leading to Class A performance. He has significant experience in world-wide companies in the petrochemical, metal mechanic, chemical, pharmaceutical, and food processing industries as well as consumer goods.

Prior to joining Oliver Wight, Alberto worked directly with the management team and executives of Yanbal Colombia to achieve Class A MRP II certification. During his 10 years with Yanbal, his responsibilities included strategic planning, supplier relationships, Sales & Operations Planning, new product development, and education in planning and control, S&OP, and continuous improvement. As General Manager of Yanbal Bolivia, he implemented S&OP and best management practices in Marketing and Sales processes as part of his responsibilities in this Country Business Unit. Alberto also provided training in MRP II, master scheduling, inventory management, and Sales & Operations Planning within Abbott Laboratories leading to their achievement of Class A Operational Excellence.

Alberto received his degree in Mechanical Engineering from Universidad de Los Andes, Bogotá, and Top Management program also from Universidad de Los Andes, and has attended other educational and specialization meetings and conferences in management, coaching and in implementation of change processes focused on developing Team Work as a strategic advantage.
